Bishop brothers' Tux and the twins' Blue and Brami' were wantin to get themselves married and have a slew of babies. "What they hadn't figured on was that findin a wife would be hard considerin women had been flocking after em like ducks to bread crumbs for years. "Tux and Nancy as you remember after a lot of fussin and fumin up and got married. Oh heavenly days they are doin fine just so happy they seem to glow. "Jana-John and Abe the Bishop boys mama and papa are pleased as all get-out bout Tux and Nancy. "Now fore I go any further here with spinnin my tale bout what happened to Blue I need to be tellin'

you some bout Amy Madison. She s one of those reporter people for that ~gī¼Œ important news-paper folks read with their m~min coffee. Youknowi¼Œ the Houston Holler paper. \"Welli¼Œ Amy s got her mind firmly fixed on bein one of the best reporters in the state of Texas. That sthe only thing that matters a hoot to heri¼Œ that job ofhers...now and in the future to come. She doesn ttake time for another thingi¼Œ it seems. \"No time at all...\"\"I don t have time for thisi¼Œ\" Amy Madison saidi¼Œsmacking the steering wheel of her ancient compactcar. \"You...will...starti¼Œ\" she saidi¼Œ narrowing hereyes. Turning the key in the ignition againi¼Œ she cringedat the ominous grinding noisei¼Œ then sighed with reliefwhen the engine caughti¼Œ chugging in an erraticrhythm. Pressing slowly on the gas pedali¼Œ Amy gripped thesteering wheel tightly as the car lurched away fromthe curb. A quick glance in the rearview mirror re-vealed black smoke billowing from the tailpipe. \"This cari¼Œ\" she mutteredi¼Œ \"is not environmentallycorrect.\"
