Why had Emmett Harvey, a successful young broker and a devoted husband, turned into a man of ice? Why did he refuse to tell anyone, even his wife, what had caused his strange behavior?

His sister-in-law hired J. D. Mulroy to investigate the matter. Despite J. D.'s reservations that it might be just a domestic squabble, she and her colleague, Ahmad Dakar (formerly tight end with the Miami Dolphins), soon found signs that pointed to something far more sinister.

The first clues were uncovered in the Colorado Beef House, a restaurant noted for its expensive food, its sexy waitresses, and for some very curious clients. Curiosity, however, was dangerous, possibly lethal, with people like that. Murder and torture were common adjuncts to their way of doing business, but who were "they" and what was their business?

Here, set in the dangerous underside of a Michigan city, is a tense and witty story of murder.
