Are we in danger of losing many of our hard-won freedoms? Are there ominous,~ parallels between the decadence and anti-life attitudes of America and those ~,f pre-Nazi Germany? Is there anything religious people can do about the anti-God;l propaganda constantly fed to us and our children by the public schools, news.. papers, TV and advertising?

Is America being stolen right out from under our noses?

John Whitehead thinks so. And you probably will too, when you finish reading

The Stealing of America. Like millions of other Americans, Whitehead is alarmed by the growing encroachment of the state into areas where it has no business. Whitehead shows how the state has increasingly gained control over education, family life, and the church--areas that were previously under the control of individuals or local government. The result has been the erosion of our God-given and constitutionally guaranteed freedoms and the rise of atheistic secularism. Sadly, Christians must share a large part of the blame for this. For too long we have sat by passively and watched our freedoms being taken from us one by one. No longer can we afford to do nothing. We must get involved--in local public school systems to ensure that our children are not being indoctrinated with anti-Christian ideology; in Christian education, if the public schools are unresponsive; in litigation, if necessary, to protect the rights of parents and families, and the rights of churches.

The time to start is now. The place to begin is with this book.
