In my ministry, I have always been partial to the parables. No matter how many times I have studied them, I always discover something new, and I always see myself in a new light. I have preached and taught some of the parables dozens of times, and yet they have never grown old.

But let me warn you: studying the parables is like exposing yourself to a laser beam! It is a dangerous thing to approach our Lord's parables with a careless attitude. In these stories, Jesus deals with subjects that no Christian can afford to treat lightly: salvation, forgiveness of others, love for minority groups, the right and wrong use of money, prayer, motives for service, and many more.

In these studies, I have tried to shed some new light on familiar truths. The parables are not bedtime stories to put us to sleep, but bugle calls to wake us up! So, if you find yourself jolted by some lesson that is taught, give thanks to God and immediately apply that lesson to your life.

I have always met myself in the parables, and I suspect you will meet yourself as well. But don't be afraid! It will do us both good!
