Most people know that Sweden is a country in northern Europe, even though it is occasionally confused with Switzerland, the land of the Alps on the European mainland. In summer we have light sunny nights, and in winter the blazing greenish hue of the northern lights flashes across the heavens and is reflected in the glittering snow. The scenery is imposing from the fertile plains of southern Sweden to the undulating mountainous region to the north. Europe's last remaining wilderness is to be found here, with marked walking paths and wild animals such as elk, bears and wolves and a unique flora which is well worth studying.

Sweden covers an area of 486,661 square kilometers, slightly less than that of France and a third more than Italy, and at the end of 1992 it had a population of 8.7 million.

Sweden elects its parliament (Riksdag) every four years and is a genuine democracy.

We have our say in the United Nations Organization and have a long tradition of giving help and protection to the suffering and persecuted. We Swedes also set great store by a stable labour market and social security.

Sweden is a monarchy headed by King Carl XVI Gustav. At his side he has Queen Silvia, who is noted for her beauty and for her sup
