Technologies considers how medical, digital, and communication technologies are transforming the way we understand gender, motherhood, the body, and feminism. Including articles that investigate fertility clinic websites, Google identities, and the HPV vaccine, Technologies presents research from the social sciences, cultural studies, history, science, and education. Karen Throsby is an associate professor in sociology at the University of Warwick, United Kingdom. She is the author of When IVF Fails. Sarah Hodges is an associate professor in history at the University of Warwick and the author of Contraception, Colonialism and Commerce.
