A pulse-pounding novel of domestic bliss gone horribly awry. After a 15-year-old babysitter disappears from a park with her infant charge, Maddy Blake, like everyone in this sleepy suburban town, is shaken. The teenager's naked body is recovered but a manhunt for the missing toddler turns up nothing. Next Maddy is in an auto accident, and invites the grim out-of-towners in the other car to stay at the Blake's home while their van is repaired. With homelife strained, Maddy turns to the local priest, whose vows are challenged by her beauty and her feelings for him. Maddy has followed the case of the missing baby with some detachment -- until the police arrive at her door. Maddy's husband, Doug, recently acquitted of sexual misconduct charges levied by the shy daughter of the local police chief, has become the chief suspect in the disappearance. Maddy's world begins to unravel.
