In British India, Alexandra found a precious love - and a bloody rebellion that threatened all her dreams!

At seventeen, beautiful Alexandra" Truscott sailed from England for exotic India to join her diplomat father. On the long voyage, she was captivated by Fraser Mackinnon - an army scout whose Scottish accent charmed her, and whose rugged tenderness roused her untouched heart.

In a sumptuous Calcutta palace, in the fragrance of tropical gardens, Alexandra discovered the depths of the handsome Scotsman's passion. Then the violence of a native rebellion shattered their gentle idyll and swept them apart. Disguised as an Indian woman, Alexandra must search through battlefields and burning cities to find Fraser - and recapture the promise of their exquisite love!

By the well known author of several novels under different names, including All In The April Morning and The Language Of Love.
