Together with a history of the several Lodges F. and A.M. of Hudson County, New Jersey. Among the early colonists, there were doubtless many individuals who had received the rites of Masonry in the old country, and who met from time to time as self-constituted Lodges, without authority, or working under warrants derived from the Grand Lodges of England or Scotland. In this work, the early history of Masonry in America is discussed and illustrated from its early beginnings.
