As children of a loving, caring heavenly Father, why are Christians still faced with trying to cope with the problems of the world? If God really cares for us, why do we still have problems?

"We all have problems. That s life," says Lloyd J. Ogilvie. "But we also have a Lord who not only helps us grow through our problems, but gives us the power to triumph over them." God allows Christians to face difficulties in life not as punishment, Dr. Ogilvie says, but to strengthen their faith and trust in Him. "When the Lord allows a big problem to surface," says Dr. Ogilvie, "it is because He is ready to do a great work."

As a part of his research, Dr. Ogilvie asked his congregation and television viewers to come up with life's biggest problems. In reviewing these responses and searching God's Word, he discovered that not only does God have a redemptive purpose for problems; but He also gives us a specific promise in the Bible for every problem. This book is a compilation of those problems which so many people have in common, and of God's amazing promises dealing with those problems.
