The book centres around a young rabbit called Howther in a world of talking animals where he grows up before the readers eyes through a series of adventures. Along the way he meets many other characters, some of whom who are not all that they appear to be and mirroring the same sorts and types that we all meet in real life. It is a story of travel, of overcoming personal fears and self doubt and of understanding that life is what you make it in a world full of personal choices.
