"Stickers are great communicators," says Mrs. Grossman. "They say things without words." No longer just for kids, stickers are a great new art form—just like scrapbooking or quilting. Want to refresh your child's lunch box, dress up your telephone list, make a picture frame, or create exquisite invitations? Sticker art is the answer. You can find all these projects and much more in Mrs. Grossman's Sticker Magic. Start with simple two-sticker combinations and work your way to advanced compositions. Learn to create scenes using basic design principles. Create dramatic and exciting three-dimensional artwork by raising ("popping") stickers with foam mounting tape. From the rolls of simple red heart stickers to the textured, color-coordinated products offered today, Mrs. Grossman's Paper Company—the largest designer and manufacturer of decorative stickers in the country—has led the way. Included is a pocket with a sheet of Mrs. Grossman's stickers, selected exclusively for this book.
