There is still much interest in Dostoevsky and new ways to interpret his work and the range and breadth of the characters in his novels. Paris also focuses on his most widely read books and short stories so the titles alone will draw much appeal. While Paris builds off the theories of well-known scholars such as Mikhail Bakhtin, Joseph Frank, Karen Horney, and Victor Terras, he has a unique angle to this study. He explores tensions between Dostoevsky's psychological portraiture and his characters formal and thematic functions. This book illuminates the motivations and personalities of Dostoevsky's greatest characters more fully than has been done before. Bernard Paris is a senior scholar who is well-known in his field and continues to produce relevant and ground-breaking projects. His last book, "Conrad's Charlie Marlow: A New Approach to 'Heart of Darkness' and Lord Jim", which only came out last year, has already sold 413 copies since last January. Addressed to all readers of Dostoevsky, as well as to teachers, students, and specialists, this lucidly-written study approaches the underground man Raskolnikov, and Ivan and Alyosha Karamazov as lucidly imagined beings whose feelings, behaviours, and ideas are expressions of their personalities and experience.
