The fantasy novel "Fluke Family King" is the third installment in the misadventures of Sir Maynerd Fluke Dumsted, knight and Royal National Hero. "Hebe lifted her dark face to the sky, searching for that spark which would bring her the power she needed. The whole island seethed in a magical turmoil, rotating like a vortex from the heart of Luloo Land. She saw the battle.and realized that Maynerd was losing against impossible odds. The very island was against him, suffocating him in smoke and flame while the blackest monster imaginable beat him to the ground at every step. She could feel his agony-see his tears. He would die without her help. Hebe knew immediately what she had to do. She.employed the winds and the rain to generate the energy she needed to recharge. It was so strong here. She had never felt anything like it before. Even the Demons of the Deep took notice as the black clouds thickened over Luloo Land. Rain pelted the ground in torrents, extinguishing the inferno that threatened the forests, but the energy grew until Hebe called it to her uplifted hands in twin flashes of lightening. The resulting thunder flattened trees to the ground and the beasts hidden within them raced for shelter."
