Secrets are what secrets are...when this phenomenon is bridged with public awareness, what could go wrong? Darius Noler was soon to learn this through a rather precarious journey. A brilliant executive at Vertex Advertising agency, Mr. Noler is looking forward to a well deserved vacation. Some things weren't meant to go as planned. Work behind him for two weeks...much to do about the residence. Spring cleaning sparks a torrential situation in his world. His friend LaMont Brisden inspired by the home improvement thing strikes a surprising find at his own townhouse apartment. What he found needed some figuring out. Question and inquiries about town draws attention...deadly attention. Someone wanted this thing of the past to remain as such. Their sinister agenda was set. And to achieve this...no limits were in the books. What was buried years ago has now surfaced unintentionally and its threat then, proved even more prevalent today. A simple little video tape carried a lot of weight especially when it contained footage of private affairs and an assembly of incognito thugs. Anger rose in that world, and fear boosted a relentless wrath. Anyone in breach of this respect was in the way. Darius Noler soon discovered that he and his world was seriously causing waves in an area which was out of control. Ironically, this strange find made a sharp pivot back towards the birth of Vertex Advertising agency. In spite of his plush life style, Darius Noler found himself and anyone he cared for was now in jeopardy of losing everything including their lives. This was not acceptable. This was not an option. He wanted to fight...he wanted to take on the odds.
