In Women Hate Till Death (originally the seventh book in the third series of 'classic era'

Hank Janson novels), Hank's attendance at a promotional event for a revolutionary new car leads him to encounter two cousins, Doris and Marion Langham, whose wartime experiences in a Nazi concentration camp in Poland continue to haunt them. When a subsequent journalistic assignment for the Chicago Chronicle leads Hank to investigate the gruesome shooting of Joe Sparman, who worked for the experimental car's manufacturer, he starts to suspect that the harrowing events of the past are having even more tangible consequences in the present... An intriguing tale of murder, revenge and romance, Women Hate Till Death is a near-perfect mix of all the ingredients that make the Hank Janson novels so engrossing.
