The celebrated photographer and social commentator Martin Parr follows up the "Boring Postcards" series with a new installment of his bizarre postcard collection. Produced in the countries of the Southern Europe -during the 1970s, these cards show shamelessly idealized photographs of romantic lovers-frolicking in the hills, holding hands in the sunset, staring dreamily into each others eyes; and of perfect families-greeting Dad home from work, in the kitchen baking a cake with Mom, singing together at the piano. . . . Originating as domestic "icons," rooted in Catholic religious tradition, these images show the Mediterranean equivalents of the Brady Bunch. Both a revealing social-historical document and hilariously funny, they will appeal to all connoisseurs of photographic kitsch.

色彩艳丽，还挺好看的

-----
非常温暖的小册子。起初以为是马丁帕尔的作品集，翻开几页时略有失望，但发型关于时代的收集，其意义往往凌驾于关于时代的创作之上。这份工作，更朴实。
