r.s. thomas (1913-2000) is one of the major poets of our time, as well as one of the finest religious poets in the English language and Wales's greatest poet. This substantial gathering of his late poems shows us the final flowering of a truly great poet still writing at the height of his powers right through his 70s and 80s. It begins with his autobiographical sequence The Echoes Return Slow, which has been unavailable for many years, and goes up to Residues, written immediately before his death at the age of 87. These powerful poems - about time and history, the self, love, the machine, the Cross and prayer - cover all of his major areas of questioning. This is R.S. Thomas in a winter light, his fury concentrated on the inhumanity of man and modern technology, his gaze absorbed by the God he felt in Nature, but finding nourishment in 'waste places'. At the same time he writes with resigned feeling and immense insight, as well as grim humour and playful irony, of isolation, ageing, marriage and 'love's shining greenhouses'. For Thomas, 'Poetry is that / which arrives at the intellect / by way of the heart.'

书评

梦 在梦中 我给那只鸟 自由。现实中 我告诉它我的梦 在它的笼中。它
于是唱出金子般的 音符，比我的泪 更滚烫，为我的梦 惩罚它自己。

迪尔米德·约翰逊：评R. S. Thomas Collected Later Poems: 1988—2000
R.S.托马斯的《晚年诗集》汇集了诗人后期的五本诗册。它们是《回声慢慢》、《对位》、《艰难时期的弥撒》、《决不休战》以及诗人去世后出版的《残渣》。

我认为不存在一种“私人的认知”。假如对世界的认知意味着“正确的认识”，那么也
