An anthology for freshman/ sophomore-level introductory Asian American Studies or Ethnic Studies courses taught in Sociology or Asian Studies programs. Authoritative, current, and accessible-yet scholastically rigorous-this anthology of personal stories, timely essays, social science readings, and informative educational resources provides a social, economic, and cultural overview of Asian Americans, relates the experiences of Asian Americans, and explores a variety of contemporary social issues deeply affecting Asian Americans. Designed to encourage students to think critically about social issues facing Asian Americans, it implicitly advances a multi-cultural, comparative, interdisciplinary approach to viewing the Asian American experience, and exposes students to major theoretical perspectives as well as the latest statistical data on Asian Americans.
