In 2001 59% of investors traded using the Internet, a massive growth since 2000 when the figure was only 17%. Internet trading is no longer the exclusive sport of professionals nor is it about day trading -- it's about investing for your future. It has taken on mass appeal as more and more of us recognize the fact that internet trading is cheaper, faster, more efficient and more fun than any other form of making money. Internet trading has hit the mainstream and it's time to take advantage. The Internet Trading Course is based on years of real trading experience from one of the most renowned names in the investment world. From the basics -- such as getting online, hardware and browser guides -- through to stock picking techniques and managing risk, this course book is an enlightening start for novices entering the trading arena and for more experienced hands who often neglect sophisticated yet essential techniques such as money management. Its accessible, user-friendly format and fun and crisp manner make it an enjoyable as well as essential tutorial in the art of Internet trading. The Internet Trading Course not only educates you in the strategies that will lead to your success but also provides the tools to carry them out with confidence and ease. .
