It's a little after four o'clock, and everyone's busy. Mom's on the phone, Dad's checking e-mail, and Katie’ s playing games with a friend. But there’ s one other person in the house, and no matter what he does – from painting a blue heart on the wall to turning the kitchen into a catastrophe (that’ s a really big mess) – none of his distracted family members come to stop him. What does a person have to do to get noticed around here?

This laugh-out-loud story by best-selling author Judith Viorst, accompanied by Christine Davenier’ s charming illustrations, perfectly captures how lonely it can feel even when the house is full of people – and just what it takes to get some attention.
