6400 gallons of water per second tear at Jennifer Poseys young body forced against a screen at the bottom of the Monticello Dam overflow drain. A deputy sheriff found the suicide note she left in her Mercedes sedan. Brian Posey, Jennifers husband, has a solid alibi. The Poseys life insurance company will pay Brian five million dollars as soon as Jennifers bones can be recovered and identified. Wealthy securities dealer John Dukehart does not believe his daughter killed herself. He hires private investigator Dan Ballantine, ex-cop, non-practicing attorney, and a specialist in insurance fraud, to prove Brian murdered Jennifer.
