For 12 years, Chris Fallows has photographed the great white sharks that reside off the coast of Capetown, South Africa - the only sharks in the world known to breach. In this series of breathtaking images he captures the world of these sharks both above water, as they intersect with humanity, and in their mysterious underwater domain. Seen on the Discovery Channel, National Geographic, BBC, CNN, and many other well-known shows and publications, Fallows' shark photos are sure to turn heads and create a deep appreciation and passion for the creatures that wander our oceans.
