作者介绍:

Somewhere between the realms of reality and imagination lies the photographic art of Mayumi Terada. She has constructed her own little world out of balsa wood and Styrofoam, clay and fabric, and then left it to our imagination to ponder the implications of her creations. “I always try to find out and express an image of space that we can possess in common,” she says.

Her large monochrome pictures show a world filled with scenes and objects completely familiar to anyone living in our Western culture, yet eerily devoid of human presence.
