BAR Architects is a San Francisco-based firm that designs mixed-use centers, arts and entertainment venues, universities, wineries, country clubs, retailers, and housing of all types. Since its inception in 1966, BAR has been a leader in environmental sustainability. The firm has received numerous awards, including a Presidential Citation, and was named firm of the year by the American Institute of Architects California Council.

Projects featured in The Place Itself: Selected Work of BAR Architects include the Sundance Institute, George Lucas' Skywalker Ranch, the Mumm Napa winery, and facilities for the University of California, the Library of Congress, Polo Ralph Lauren, and Apple Computer.
