Pavic's tale is a tale of secrets, and everything else are unreliable signs on water. Stories are puzzles that offer only hints and twists that will drop us like a shadow into muttered nights of life and their history. Love as the core of the story, between Venus and Christ, the real Mikaena and her reflection, is elusive - like the past and the future, an immense depth before which we must close our eyes. This brief history, full of hints, lucid metaphors, and miraculous connection and keys, dreams and virtual reality, which descends from the future in times past, reveals Pavic as a master of stories and caster of dice, and in its capricious unpredictability will open gardens of life and death, where we may find reflections of our souls and our secrets.
