Experience the wisdom of this life-long environmental activist as he clarifies his vision with unprecedented articulateness, brutal honesty, and humor in his own booming voice. Attention ecologists, environmentalists, and the intellectually curious: we now have available the immortal voice of the legendary landscape architect, Ian McHarg. A self-styled "crypto-pseudo-quasi-scientist," McHarg presents in his inimitable Scots accent his unique theory of energy and matter processes inclusive of "human needs and desires" in a finite universe. Listen as he discusses the interdisciplinary theory that astonished good scientists including the director of Brookhaven National laboratory. A gift to future generations.
