Decision-Making Group Interaction provides a practical understanding of communication in task-oriented groups, focusing on effective processes that yield quality outcomes. With an overall emphasis on quality--from interactions in group contexts and effective group processes to effective outcomes of groups engaging in decision making processes--this text reinforces the importance of groups continuously attempting to achieve quality group decision-making outcomes as a result of engaging in quality communication practices, mirroring an emphasis placed on communication in group settings in businesses across the country. This text is thought-provoking and provides students and instructors with the necessary information to stimulate interactions in the classroom that will inspire continuous application outside the classroom.
