The students at Hilltop School are very busy. Fritz is trying to build a Superconducting Super Collider for the school Science Fair. Timothy and Claude are baking treats to share with the class for the Measuring Day party. And Charles is doing his best to perfect his bald eagle screech in time for Bird Week. In this collection of six stories, Rosemary Wells uses her celebrated humor and charm to touch on the laughter, frustrations, skirmishes, and friendships that are part of every school-aged child's life.
