Bennett Foster, master storyteller of the cattle lands, tells here the violent yarn of one man's stand on a range full of death. War ripped the Arizona range to shreds. Rustlers did their dirty thieving by moonlight. Killers rained down their death from ambush. Apaches terrorized the lonely ranchers. And through the gunshot-plagued Southwest rode one man - Lane McLain - holding the law in his fists, fighting to preserve a blood-stained cattle empire, challenging any backleg crook or killer to make his play. Bennett Foster, master storyteller of the cattle lands, tells here the violent yarn of one man's stand on a range full of death.
