In the seventh year of the Trojan War, Troy is besieged by the invading Greeks, but the young prince Troilus thinks only of the lovely Cressida. When Cressida is sent to the enemy camp, she falls for Diomedes as Troilus looks on in a jealous rage. Meanwhile, Achilles and a gang of Greek warriors finds and slaughters an unarmed Hector. This cynical play is one of the Bard's darkest comedies; performed by Ian Pepperell, Julia Ford, and the Arkangel cast.
