Beyond use in the consumer markets, detergents have applications that range from serving as additives in automotive lubricants and aiding in the cleanup and biodegradation of oil spills and other environmental contaminants to aiding paper and textile processing and the improved formulation of paints, inks, and colorants. Faced with many challenges and choices, formulators must choose the composition of detergents carefully. This text enables formulators to meet the demands of the increasing complexity of formulations, economic and sustainability constraints, and reducing the impact of detergents on the environment to which they will eventually be released.
