Millions of adults throughout the world go online each month looking for love. With so many sites and potential daters, what's the most effective way to break through the clutter? In this fun yet informative guide, top Hollywood publicist Leslie Oren uses the tricks of her trade to help single women find their perfect match. According to Leslie, the key to successful online dating is knowing how to market yourself and create an image - a big part of the Hollywood machine, and a publicist's calling card. Her practical advice (grounded in 10+ years of experience presenting clients in their most attractive light) will teach you: how to write the perfect profile; what not to write in a first email to a potential suitor; and, why a second date means online dating success. "Fine I'll go Online!" Is the essential manual for any woman who wants to perfect her online dating skills so she can shine like a star.
