Mentoring is an effective way for individuals to pass on the benefits of their life experiences and the wisdom garnered from living. While this practice is valuable to shaping and influencing the next generation, Lisa Bevere identifies some short-comings in this approach. She explains that mothering invests encouragement and unconditional love, while instilling biblical truth that impacts the most important areas of internal and external life. Mothers are often described as laying down their lives to bring forth life. Lisa says this kind of sacrifice is sorely needed today. Through her ministry to many thousands of young women each year, Lisa constantly sees how much they need the nurturing only older women can offer. This need has prompted Lisa to share stories like the one above in this impassioned new book and to illustrate the importance for Christian women to seek out opportunities to extend this greatly needed and rewarding ministry.
