The New York Times bestseller: An inspiring celebration of courageous American innovators who are transforming the way we protect and care for the world we live in.

From the San Juan Basin to the Gulf of Mexico to the South Bronx, from mothers on Cape Cod to Colorado ranchers, a vibrant coalition of Americans are deploying ingenuity, technology, and sheer willpower to save the world they know and love. Now, in this passionate and personal book, which combines intensive research with keenly observed personal experiences, Senator John Kerry and Teresa Heinz Kerry, who first met at an Earth Day summit, shine the spotlight on these people in the hopes that their stories will inspire others to action.
