This groundbreaking book offers the biggest step forward in family communications since the invention of language...and is what every concerned parent has wanted for years. Helyn Connerr has developed an entirely original system, known as the Mercury Model, that's both cross-cultural and straight from the forefront of the New Physics of thought. Sympathetic and lighthearted in tone, it's designed as a series of in-depth profiles, with 12 archetypal mental personifications that include characters like Scout, the Trailblazer; Details, the Analyst; and Sherlock, the Detective. Each one is illustrated, and assessment tables allow parents to compare their own profile to their child's and discover the best method of working with their youngster. Easy to follow descriptions reveal how different learning types receive and process information, so getting kids connected to their innate mental strength is made simple.
