Love can be so... unexpected. In the spring of 1935, understated beauty Eva Edwards is widowed. A blessing to be sure. Having long since left England, a rare talent for music and notions of love behind, her one focus is keeping her farm and raising a child not her own-no matter the sacrifice and struggle. Born of wealth, veterinarian Tate Prescott Brown has come to the dust of Saskatchewan's rural Qu'Appelle District to find independence and take possession of his farm-Eva's farm. Now, in an effort to solve a legal misunderstanding, Tate faces a sacrifice and struggle of his own: to do what he thinks is right by Eva ... or what's right for his heart. Reviews and Other Information: "Historical readers will take pleasure in the unique setting of this story and romance readers will find the blossoming relationship between Eva Edwards and Tate Brown irresistible... all the elements I love in a good historical romance... a wonderful setting, good, strong characters and a romance to take your breath away." -Simply Romance Reviews
