Jamie Peters is more than a little skeptical when her psychic tells her she's about to meet her soul mate. But then it happens--she runs smack in to gorgeous, honest, totally normal jack. It's fate. Kismet. Destiny. Except it isn't. Jack is actually following Jamie, investigating her application to his grandfather's charitable trust because he suspects someone is stealing from her non-profit. Now that he's totally smitten, how can he tell Jamie that he's lied about his identity, his job, his millionaire status, and the fact that he thinks she might be a criminal? Jack's got two weeks before his cover's blown...and a lot can happen in two weeks...
