Penguins do the same thing every day. They swim, eat fish, sleep standing up, look at people, and look at more people. It's an ordinary day at the zoo until a little girl drops something into the penguin pen... see extended summary "What is it?" asks one penguin. "It's a camera," says the little penguin. "What do you do with a camera?" they ask. "You smile at it!" The little penguin grins. So begins a charming adventure for the penguins at the zoo. This adorable story is full of hilarious moments and sweet illustrations as the penguins ham it up for the camera! See what develops from the fun.... Liz Pichon is the award-winning children's book author and illustrator of such books as Sqaure-eyed Pat and My Big Brother, Boris. She lives with her husband and three children in Brighton, UK. This is her first title with Orchard Books.
