Che's original, never-before-published diaries from the guerrilla war in Cuba's Sierra Maestra. Unpublished for over fifty years, these dozen notebooks were the source material for the articles that comprise Che's famous "Reminiscences of the Cuban Revolutionary War," on which Steven Soderbergh has based his movie "Che: The Argentine." Like Che's "Bolivian Diary," these daily reflections reveal as much about the author as they do about the events and individuals described. Che's comments are always incisive, often highly self-critical, and sometimes brutally frank. This book includes many new, unpublished photos from the private collection of Che's widow Aleida March and a fascinating introduction by veteran Cuban revolutionary Armando Hart, who was the victim of Che's pen in these diaries, but who later became one of his closest political collaborators. As a new, unpublished work by Che Guevara, this book will attract considerable attention and will be published in English in spring 2009.
