Although women are still in the minority in the executive ranks of business, there is a way to move up. It's not about working harder or getting advanced degrees. The fundamental building block for success is the establishment of a powerful NetWork. Successful women told us that the distinguishing characteristic of leading executives is their involvement in a professional NetWork of solid relationships developed over a number of years. Our mission is to provide you with a road map to build a successful NetWork a robust NetWork built for you to climb your own PowerLadder and achieve career success.
