Trevor Lambert is on the brink of fulfilling every hotelier's fantasy: managing his own inn. In Vancouver, Canada, stands the perfect B and B - a Victorian mansion called Graverly Manor. But first he must impress the elderly owner, who swans around in ball gowns and spins tall tales of her royal bloodline. Lady Graverly won't sell the manor to Trevor until he lives and works there for three months. Screams in the night, foul odours, and the sudden disappearance of a chambermaid have Trevor looking over his shoulder. Grim rumours of Lady Graverly's husband, who disappeared over fifty years ago, only add to the home's eerie atmosphere. Trevor is dying to see Lady Graverly's private rooms, but she refuses. What dark secrets is she hiding? Praise for "Murder at Hotel Cinema": 'This fast-paced puzzler shines with droll wit and hotel-savvy details' - "Publishers Weekly".
