Deborah Merlin raised twin sons who both suffered from severe emotional, mental, and behavioral problems from birth. In this revised edition on what parents can do to reverse ADHD, she shares information on the noninvasive, alternative medical treatments that had the most positive effects on her sons' conditions. Included is a continuation of her sons' personal journeys through high school, plus additional information from leading experts on the effects of artificial food coloring, vaccinations, aspartame, electromagnetic radiation, food allergies, and common traditional drugs used to treat ADHD. Also, naturopathic and homeopathic practitioners weigh in on how the previously mentioned modalities can be used effectively to treat this condition.
