On an island in Vietnam, a monk lives in a coconut tree, eating its fruit and playing with his friends, a cat and a mouse. All the while, a war is raging. One day, the monk decides to visit his country's president. After all, if a man, a cat, and a mouse can live in harmony, why can't a nation? But the hostile guards at the presidential palace throw the Coconut Monk in jail. Is there still a way for his message to be heard? Based on a true story, this charming picture book shows how unconquerable divides can be overcome through compassion and perseverance.

小小绘本，简单几句话，把人也哭的，也就thay了吧

“从自然的观点来看，和比他们同其他许多事物都更接近，比如，，或可可树。”战争双方不也是dominate和dominated的关系嘛。所以猫鼠比喻类同。腿，腿能不能好好画画，瑜伽式都做不好，喂！当我查一查coconut monk，我发现，杰克·康菲尔德在《踏上心灵幽径》中说，岛屿尽头的小丘上，有座六十尺高的巨大佛陀立像，旁边站立著一样高的耶稣雕像。他们的手臂环绕彼此的肩膀，面带微笑。当武装直升机飞过，四周进行著激烈的战斗时，佛陀和耶稣像兄弟般站在那里，向所有愿意追随他们道路的人展现慈悲和疗愈。
