Salvation Army is a coming-of-age novel that narrates the story of Taïa's life with complete disclosure — from a childhood bound by family order and latent (homo)sexual tensions in the poor city of Salé, through an adolescence in Tangier charged by the young writer's attraction to his eldest brother, to his disappointing "arrival" in the Western world to study in Geneva in adulthood—and in so doing manages to burn through the author's first-person singularity to embody the complex mélange of fear and desire projected by Arabs on Western culture, and move towards restituting their alterity.

I love Abdellah Taïa as a person. This is an amazing book published in France subsidized by the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs. An amazing, amazing book with love, passion, heartbreaks and salvation. His writing touches my heart. The lure of Europe; the love for literature; the loneliness and hopelessness, all resonate with me.
