Beginning with international security issues, this survey discusses specific strategic developments related to Asian countries--including India's responses to global-energy and space-security challenges, emerging military technologies, and the nuclear nonproliferation regime. With in-depth investigations of major events in numerous regions of India's immediate and extended strategic neighborhood, this discussion also covers the evolving partnership between India and the United States and an evaluation of the India-Pakistan peace process. Comprehensive and thorough, this examination also features a statistical appendix containing defense- and conflict-related data.
