Insurance examiner James McKenzie is brutally murdered -- the cops say by a hooker -- but Attorney Leland Denton discovers the dead man may have been involved in a conspiracy between the insurance company and a New York bank to embezzle three hundred million dollars. Could the hooker have been an assassin hired by the insurance company president. Or was it the president of the bank? Or maybe, McKenzie's young wife, who's having a lesbian affair, had him killed for his life insurance.
