Maine photographer Sarah C. Butler provides an insider's look at the local people and landscapes of Northeast Harbor, Maine. More than one hundred compelling photographs in color and black and white take the reader through the seasons and the personality of this unique region of the Atlantic Coast, beginning at the head of Somes Sound, on Mount Desert Island. Sure to capture the interest of every reader whether long-time resident, summer visitor, one-time guest, or aficionado of the American face and landscape, 'Portrait of a Maine Island' is a wonderful introduction to a remarkable photographer and her remarkable home.
