This volume explores various facets of the Islamic search for knowledge. It examines figures as diverse as Abu Najib al-Suhrawardi and Ibn al-'Arabi on the one hand, and Ibn Battuta and Ibn Jubayr on the other. The volume is divided into two main sections - Thought and Travel - but all the essays are linked by the common theme of the quest for knowledge. This collection offers insights which should be of interest all students and scholars of Islamic thought and travel.
