This story is one of the great classics of American literature. Huckleberry Finn continues the adventures begun with Twain's Tom Sawyer. Twain (the pseudonym for Samuel Clemens) began the sequel in 1876 and completed it in 1884. It is regarded by many critics as a more accomplished and a more serious work of art, as well as a keener portrayal of the frontier experience along the Mississippi than Tom Sawyer. The novel was ground breaking in its depiction of the horror of slavery and the mistreatment of blacks in that region. This is a CBC/BBC co-production featuring Christopher Jacot as Huck and Martin Roach as Jim. Other cast members include Hardee Lincham (King), James Kee (The Duke), and Peter Oldring as Tom Sawyer. The dramatist, Marcy Kahan, grew up in Montreal and is currently resident in London, England. The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn was produced at CBC's Toronto studios by the BBC's Ned Chaillet. It features an original score by John Roby.
